

Are you the Parent of Child with Sickle Cell Disease?

A new research project is looking for teens 13-17 years old to assist with the development of Pinpoint, a new tablet app that helps young Sickle Cell Disease (SCD) patients assess and talk about their pain.

If you have a child between the ages of 13-17 years old who has SCD, your child may be eligible to participate in this study sponsored by The National Institutes of Health. We would like to hear your child's opinions and suggestions about the Pinpoint tablet app.

Participation involves usability testing that typically lasts 60 minutes.

Participants will receive $30⁰⁰ for their time and parents will receive $20⁰⁰ for transportation costs.
